2017 Presenters

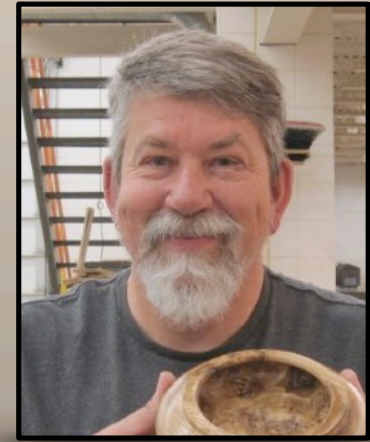

John Beaver has lived his entire life near the Pacific Ocean. The motion and rhythm of the ocean's waves are a major inspiration for his work. Contrast also is an important element, both aesthetically and in the process of turning a functional object, like a bowl, into an objet d'art. The technical genesis of these works lies in his ability to deconstruct and reconstruct a turned vessel in different ways while maintaining grain and wall alignment.

Rudolph Lopez was born in Tampa FL and spent much of his time growing up on my uncle's cattle ranch in Lutz FL, from which came his love of nature and wood. He has always enjoyed the creative process of making things with his hands and began by building fine furniture and cabinetry. His desire to explore woodturning began when he was given a natural-edge bowl as a Christmas gift.

Mark Kielpinski is the current President of the Dakota Woodturners. Mark has been turning wood for the past seven years. It was in the quest to learn how to make wood turned puzzles that got Mark interested in the art of wood turning. When creating a piece, Mark believes that form needs to be the main focus.
