Prez Sez

January 2026

Well, that sure went fast! 2025 is officially in the books and we're off to 2026! We've got Career Academy mentoring starting this month and our April Symposium will be here before we know it. Thanks to Ex-Prez Ron Day, we have our April symposium presenters lined up and more details regarding specific projects and timing to come in the next month or so. For now, just know that the presenters will be Pat Scott, Jessica Edwards, and our very own Mark Kielinski. I've been admiring Mark's stuff for years, and after looking at the things Pat and Jessica do, I'm excited to get them here also for our symposium....'should be a blast! Put Friday Feb 6 on your calendar for the DWT Winter Dinner (see details at right), and thank John and Becky for getting this rolling. I'll stop blathering now, and tie this up, and plan on seeing you at Saturday's meeting! Until then, keep spinning.

Kleber

Show and Share:

Peggy Rudick brought in a segmented mahogany and maple bowl and natural edge bowl.

Larry Nelson brought in an ambrosia maple bowl with Emma Cook inspired embellishment. Lacquer finish over top.

Doug Alm shared a disk vase he made for his brother who recently turned 89. The wood was from this brother's land and he got the pheasant feathers and ears of corn from his brother as well. This is a birthday gift.

Marlene Roles painted a Christmas ornament and Angel with lace wings. She asked the best way to package and send the angel. Some suggestions were tubes to protect the wings. She didn't bleach the wings on this angel.

Jon Schuck shared a lidded box that he took to Wayne's Shop and used the rose engine to add texture to the box. Threaded box had rosewood threads with pattern on top.

Alan Welte made a pin cushion Christmas tree. He used a skew to turn the tree and cut off pins for the ornaments. Alan makes an ornament every year this was one his wife saw from AAW article. The challenge was finding proportional bird and seeds for the inside.

Mark Kielinski had a wormy ash bowl from Rocky Mountain Symposium. A lace sphere hollowed from the outside there is more cleanup on sphere then on an egg. He also shared a zentangled egg that took about 3 hours.

Jim Rudick busy making bowls, pens, and spalted birch hollow form.

Jim Porter had an elm burl he got from his sister. Filled the voids with resin that was colored so not clear and see thru.

Jim Miller shared the first two things he has actually turned. The first was learning to use the tools, he tried lots of tools. The second was an authentic "goblet" done at Ron's shop.

George Scholl shared punky birch that almost didn't make it. Finished with wipe on poly it started to crack, and he needs to refinish.

Dolly Erickson got her trusty assistant out to the shop and made Christmas gifts for the girls. She woodburned to add more interest.

Spud Gruman was inspired by little Jon's polishes last month. Spud brought in a maple bowl

The mystery prize was drawn, the winner was Mark Schwarnowske. The president's challenge was awarded to Marlene Roles, a wine stopper and blank.

Motion to adjourn at 9:52am.
